

For JOMPathon, young musicians really know the score

WORCESTER— Above, a thirteen-year-old from Rutland performs the 4th movement of Telemann's Concerto in G Major during the JOMPathon fundraiser put on by Joy of Music Program yesterday. The violist, who is accompanied by her instructor, Regie Pineda, has been a student at the school for six years.

Below right, an eight-year-old takes a bow after her performance, which was accompanied by her teacher, Olga Pineda.

Below, a student from Northboro performs Concerto No. 1 in G Minor by Bruch during JOMPathon, a 13-hour student recital of marathon proportions.
